TRIBUTE TO CHARLES H. WACKER.

An expression of the city's indebtedness to Charles H. Wacker, chairman of the Chicago plan commission, is contained in a resolution that John G. Shedd introduced at a recent meeting of the commission. On his motion the resolution was unanimously adopted. It said:

"Mr. Wacker's services have been rendered without remuneration. It is not a little thing for a man to sacrifice his time, his energies, his business and personal financial interests to an ideal, and the ideals of the old Commercial club through Daniel H. Burnham and his staff, which have been handed to the city of Chicago by the generosity of the Commercial club, would have been unavailing had the duty of carrying them forward fallen upon the shoulders of a man whose ideals had not been commensurate with the great task.

"This untiring, unselfish and devoted work of Mr. Wacker will be a lasting benefit to every citizen of Chicago no matter in what section he may live or what his position in life may be. The plans and ideals are so broad that they reach every corner of Chicago and assist in the development of the whole city."

GENERAL DAWES HONORED.

President Charles G. Dawes of the Central Trust Company has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his service in the war.

Brig.-Gen. Dawes, whose home is in Evanston, quit civil life in the spring of 1917, shortly after the United States entered the war, to accept the post of lieutenant-colonel of the 17th railroad engineers, formed at Atlanta, Ga., with a Chicago battalion. The regiment was sent to France shortly after the first expedition headed by General Pershing sailed and Colonel Dawes became a full colonel and then brigadier general.

In a very short while he was detached from the line and given a post on the general staff, later being made purchasing agent for the overseas service of supplies.

General Dawes was a member of the republican national committee in 1896, and was comptroller of the currency from 1897 to 1902. It was he who founded the "Dawes hotel" in Chicago, where down-and-outers can get a clean bed, a bath and breakfast for ten cents. He later opened a similar institution for women.

The first of these hotels is a memorial to his son, Rufus, who was drowned at Lake Geneva three years ago.

OBITUARY

MRS. THOMAS CAREY.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Carey, wife of Thomas Carey, took place Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock from the residence, 4127 Grand boulevard.

Mrs. Carey had been ill less than a week, following an operation for appendicitis at St. Bernard's hospital. She is survived by three sons and four daughters, Eugene, Margaret, Ruth, Helen, Robert, William, and Mrs. Frank A. Collins.

RAYMOND W. EVANS.

Raymond W. Evans, vice president and general sales manager of the Eagle-Picher Lead company, died in New York City. His home was at 9914 Longwood drive, Chicago. Mr. Evans entered the employ of the Picher Lead company about twenty years ago as bookkeeper, later to become salesman. About fifteen years ago he was appointed sales manager and treasurer.

Two years ago when the Eagle White Lead company and the Picher Lead company were consolidated he was made vice president and general sales manager. He held both of these positions when he died.

Mr. Evans was a member of the Illinois Athletic club, Missouri Athletic club, and the Beverly Golf and Ridge County clubs. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Miss Eugenia.

LOWDEN IN 1920

the third found that, during the war, all creeds, Catholics, Protestants, and Jews, were of the same mold and working unitedly for the winning of the war.

"Now, that showed a new feeling of brotherhood consequent upon the war. So today we have a solidarity of our citizenship through the war that is worth all the war has cost, if it can be preserved.

"During the war our two great enemies were the unbridled autocracy of Germany and the unbridled mob of Russia. I do not know which is worse, but I do know that we of America fear the spirit of the mob as much as we did the mailed fist of Germany.

"The battle we have fought, therefore, is only half won, and if we are to win entirely we must preserve the same spirit that we evidenced at that Springfield meeting, and the solidarity of all classes of our citizenship.

"Just as we went into the war many of us trembled lest the generation of today might not live up to the glorious traditions of Illinois in other wars. After seeing what Illinois had done at Belleau Wood, at Cantigny, at Chateau Thierry, at St. Mihiel, and in the Argonne, we know that Illinois need not blush for her sons, as it never has had to blush for their forebears."

After telling of the formations of the State Council of Defense, with a legislative appropriation of only $50,000, and the various things it was called upon to do, Gov. Lowden continued:

"These multiplying activities of the state council, however, soon exhausted the funds available for its use. I did not wish to call a special session of our legislature, and therefore I appealed to a group of prominent members of this club to raise a hundred thousand dollars to carry on the work of our state council.

"That group of distinguished citizens responded generously and promptly, and the hundred thousand dollars, largely contributed by members of this club, was placed in the hands of the state council. Therefore, when I was invited to this dinner I felt it my duty to come to make acknowledgment to you for your fine, patriotic generosity to the state."

Samuel Insull, chairman of the state Council of Defense, was the only other speaker. He preceded Gov. Lowden and described the notable part Illinois played in the winning of the war and the work of the state council.

The state's part is shown, he said, in more than 1,500,000 men registered for military service, $1,300,000,000 lent to the government, more than $42,000,000 contributed to war relief and recreation agencies, and the greatest farm crops in money value—$579,000,000—ever produced by any state.

"Gov. Lowden did not seek to curry favor with either hyphenates or pacifists by soft speaking," said Mr. Insull. "Nor did he recognize politics or partisanship as a factor in the prosecution of the war. He did not conceal his convictions nor camouflage his attitude." Continuing, he said in part:

"With Gov. Lowden to lead, it is our belief that Illinois made a record in the war in which all may take a just pride. Let me sum up for you some of the state's achievements—not in wearing detail, but in gross totals.

"First, the men our state furnished to fight the war, for the men who do the fighting rightly come first. Under the selective service act, Illinois registered a total of 1,559,586 men of fighting age—640,480 on June 5, 1917, between the ages of 21 and 31 years; 44,106 youngsters who had just come of age on June 5, 1917; 689,000 on Sept. 12, 1918, boys between the ages of 18 and 21 and men between the ages of 31 and 45.

"Illinois put into the national service a total of 314,594 men and boys—24,663 in the navy, 3,678 in the marines, and 286,163 in the army. The figures for the army are to the end of the war; those for the navy and the marines are up to June 30 only; the several thousand volunteers who entered the service as officers through the various training camps are not included.

"Another interesting fact is that while the selective service act was adopted almost as soon as America was in the war, 55.6 per cent of the men who went from Illinois—178,143—volunteered.

FOR NONPARTISAN DELEGATES

Efficiency Bureau Opposes Primary for Constitutional Convention.

The following resolution favoring non-partisan election of delegates to the constitutional convention has been adopted by the trustees of the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency:

"Whereas, it is of the utmost importance that the delegates elected to the forthcoming constitutional convention of Illinois shall be men of special fitness for their work, in order that it may be well done and may inspire public confidence; and

"Whereas, the nomination of delegates at partisan primaries will tend to result in the selection of men who are not specially fitted for the work of the convention, which should not be permitted to become partisan; and

"Whereas, the nomination of candidates by petition is likely to secure the election of men of greater ability and fitness, and also will be the most economical method; therefore be it

Resolved, That the trustees of the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency join with the Citizens' Association and other civic organizations in urging the Illinois legislature to provide for the election of delegates to the constitutional convention upon a non-partisan basis."

EAGLETS.

At the annual meeting of the Chicago Clearing House Association Tuesday morning Smith, chairman of the board of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company tendered his resignation as a member of the clearing house committee. Mr. Smith has served on the committee continuously for forty-five years. His retirement was wholly voluntary. He will be succeeded on the committee by Edmund D. Hulbert, president of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company. The remaining retiring officers and committee members were re-elected.

City Treasurer Clayton F. Smith has been endorsed by the Twenty-eighth Ward Democrats for the aldermanic seat made vacant by Alderman Harry E. Little's election to the sanitary district board. He has agreed to run.

William H. Reid, the City Smoke Inspector, is one of the most popular men in public life. He has a big following and is coming to the front rapidly in Republican politics.

Messengers restaurants which can be found all over the city are very popular with everybody. They are clean, wholesome, sanitary and bright. The food is of the best quality and the service is excellent.

Dixon C. Williams, the well known manufacturer and popular Democratic orator deserves well at the hands of his fellow citizens.

Henry Stuckart will be nominated for City Treasurer by the Democrats without opposition.

The Vesuvio Italian Restaurant on the second floor of 123 North Clark street is deservedly popular. Its cuisine is of the best and its manager, Eduardo Vitroni, is one of the most capable restaurant men in the United States.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

AMERICAN PRINCESS OF WALES?

The matrimonial future of the prince of Wales is much discussed in London these days. The Daily Express, for instance, recently devoted two columns to the subject, pointing out that the war has narrowed the choice for the royal marriage. There is no possibility now of a German princess becoming queen of England, and a vast tragedy has obliterated the Russian royal family.

As regards marriageable princesses in other European countries, the Express says that Princess Yolanda of Italy is ineligible on religious grounds. Princess Helena of Greece is no longer talked of as the future queen, and although one of the Roumanian princesses might be chosen, the prospect would arouse little enthusiasm.

"The fact is," says the Express, "that there is a keen desire that the prince shall be allowed to choose for himself a British wife—if not an American. His marriage with a British bride would be exceedingly popular. If he should choose an American bride, the enthusiasm on both sides of the Atlantic would be unbounded, and dramatic possibilities would be opened up.

"The example would be infectious, and there is no telling where the consequences would end."

The Express says the idea of royal caste marrying within itself is no part of English law and forms no written part of any continental constitution. "There is nothing whatever to prevent King George giving his consent to the marriage of the prince of Wales to anybody who is not a Roman Catholic," it adds.

The Chronicle also mentions the subject. It sees special interest in the forthcoming visit of the king and queen of Roumania to London, in view of the fact that their beautiful eldest daughter, Princess Elizabeth, has been frequently mentioned as an eligible bride for the prince of Wales. It points out that the queen of Roumania is an English princess and a cousin of King George.

She has retained her love for England and English ways.

PLEA FOR DISCHARGED WOMEN

"Thousands of women will automatically step out of positions and part with pay envelopes as each homecoming troopship discharges its human freight on our shores. It is the business of this country to see that those women are protected in their retirement and that an exchange to another industrial front be effected without appreciable loss to the pay envelope."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, national suffrage president, thus summed up recently the threefold problem of the readjustment of the labor situation from the war to the peace basis.

"We are entering our protest against discharge of women without proper warning and without help in finding other positions. We have asked the federal employment agencies established throughout the country to find work for soldiers to do the same for women. Our state suffrage associations act as our local representatives in bringing pressure to bear and the national association uses what federal influence it can command. Our state associations also investigate special cases.

"Should there be failure to act on the part of the federal employment agencies it may become necessary to call together the organizations now working on the different phases of the reconstruction of industry as they affect women. The Women's Trade Union league concerns itself with the wage scale and conditions of labor. The Young Women's Christian association specializes on the care of women out of positions. Others attack the question from different angles."

"The problem of readjustment is threefold—first, sifting out women from the soldiers' civilian employment and that of the war service women home from the front; second, providing work for these substitutes as well as the munition workers and war bureau clerks, and, third, elimination of the incompetent."

"The incompetents—what is to become of them?"

of a gift of discovering his opponent's weaknesses, a constant variation of tactics, never fighting twice in the same way, and a paradoxical and scrupulous prudence are in his list of assets.

"I wouldn't ride in the safest machine in the world if another man was driving it," he says.

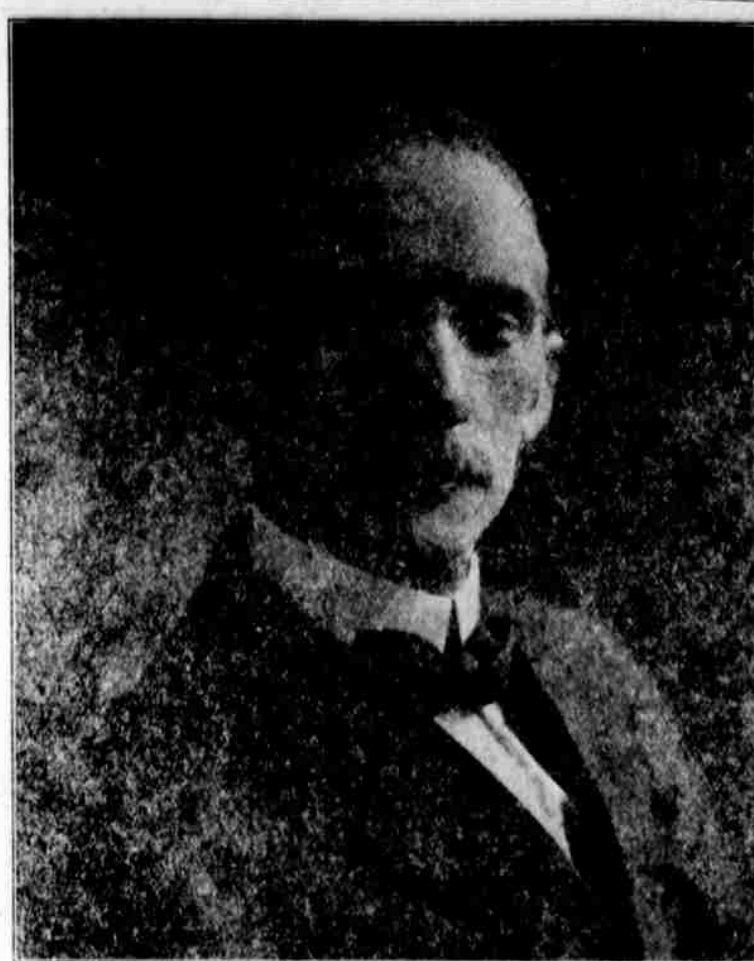

Lieutenant Fonck admires the American aviators, but suspects that they do not take death seriously enough.

HARVARD'S OLDEST STUDENT

Every big university has some queer students—queer in the sense that they are out of the ordinary. Harvard now has one of these in Col. George Lyon, who won his title in the Nebraska National Guard. Colonel Lyon is seventy years of age and was graduated from Harvard in 1879. This time he will take a course in public speaking.

During his 40 years of attendance on the larger school of life Colonel Lyon has presumably learned several things that were not in the college curriculum. His record would seem to indicate that he had learned a whole lot. Anyway, he is an ex-cowboy, and a range rider learns considerable that is not in the books. Also he has been a minister. An editor's sanctum confined him for a while. At another time he was a banker. And between times he has dabbled in politics and war.

This veteran student has been well received by the student body. The youngsters have extended the glad hand of fellowship. If they sit around and listen they may learn from him.

SCHOOLS ASK SIX MILLIONS

A number of Chicago banks have agreed to lend the board of education $5,000,000 for running expenses until next April, when the tax money will be coming in. Already $600,000 has been advanced, so the teachers can have their pay before Christmas. The details of the loan have not been decided on, according to George M. Reynolds, representing the bankers. The board of education will issue tax anticipation warrants as security.

FROM LOT LINE TO LOT LINE

As City Owns All of Street It Should Clean Sidewalks Itself.

FROM LOT LINE TO LOT LINE

The city claims the ownership of the streets from lot line to lot line and all obstructions on the sidewalks from news stands to snow are there with its permission. It rents space on sidewalks at its own sweet will. It should, therefore, keep the sidewalks as well as the rest of the streets clean. But it does not. The money that the city should spend on the cleaning of dirty sidewalks is wasted on $2,000,000 worth of unnecessary job holders.

DONNELLY'S FOR DIAMONDS

The best place in Chicago to buy diamonds, as everybody knows, is at T. N. Donnelly & Co.'s, 24 N. Dearborn street. For over forty years this well known and reliable house has been at the head of the diamond trade of Chicago, and the prices are always reasonable for the best goods on the market.

Judge Thomas F. Scully has made a splendid record in the County Court. The people have confidence in him and their confidence has never been misplaced, either when the judge was on the Municipal bench or in his present responsible position.
